The screenshot shows the Allway Sync application window. The title bar reads "Allway Sync". The menu bar includes "File", "Edit", "View", "Job", "Language", and "Help". The main interface features the Allway Sync logo and the tagline "file synchronization that works". Below this, there are several sync options: "Documents Sync", "Backup to Allway Cloud", "Google Drive --> Amazon S3", "NAS Backup", "FTP Sync", and a dropdown menu currently set to "Backup to Allway Cloud".

The main workspace shows a synchronization between a local folder "D:\Work\Projects" and a remote folder "https://allwaycloud.com/Backup/Projects". A "Change" button with a blue arrow is positioned between the two paths. Below the paths, there are "Configure..." buttons for both the local and remote folders. The local folder is currently set to "Windows folder".

The file list is divided into sections: "New Files (12)", "Unchanged Files (95)", and "All Files (107)". The "All Files" section contains a table with the following columns: Name, Size, Time, Direction, Name, Size, and Time. The table lists various files and folders being synchronized, with arrows indicating the direction of the sync. Some files are marked as "Does not exist" in the remote location.

At the bottom of the window, there are buttons for "Analyze", "Synchronize", and "Stop". A progress bar shows "Synchronizing: 95%". The status bar indicates "Last successful synchronization: 16.02.2016 11:04" and "Last synchronization attempt: 17.02.2016 12:13". A log window at the very bottom shows file copy operations.
